

Bientina

The country of Bientina, by its nature artisan village, lies at the foot of Monti Pisani.

Despite having lost its ancient medieval dress to take on a connotation of a commercial nature, in Bientina you can visit: the Church of Santa Maria Assunta, where the remains of St. Valentine, the Museum of Sacred Art, the Etruscan Museum and the Church San Girolamo, where a permanent exhibition on the ancient history of the area.

The collection includes artifacts dating back to proto-Etruscan-Roman and Etruscan in the Marsh of Bientina found during excavations in 1953 and 1957.

Of great interest is the nature Tanali Woods, located on the western side of the

Marshes of Bientina

on the slopes of Monti Pisani. The forest covers about 153 hectares on the edge of the former bed of the lake. The area includes a variety of environments from very significant natural point of view: wet meadows periodically flooded pagliereti, humid forests, small ponds and reed beds, important sites for the lives of many species of plants and animals.

The craft is an important resource for the country. The fourth Saturday and fourth Sunday of every month in Piazza dei Borghi takes the traditional flea market, which sees the presence of numerous exhibitors with furniture and various objects.
